Where did you first hear about IAS?

What do you believe IAS is about?

Why is it important to you to participate in IAS 2009?

Several assignments dealing with Christian faith and international issues will also be due January 31, 2009. Participation in I.A.S. is contingent upon completion of these assignments, which involve some research and writing, along with some critical thinking. I.A.S. participants are also required to request recommendations from parents/guardians, ministers and teachers. I.A.S. Applicants failing to complete assignments or garner recommendations will NOT be accepted to participate in I.A.S. Assignments, requests for recommendations and health forms will be mailed to I.A.S. applicants once all application forms are processed.

Additional information surrounding I.A.S. will be shared as it becomes available. Too, I.A.S. participants will receive a "Get -Ready" book once all registrations, assignments recommendations and health forms have been received, accepted and processed. For now, mark your calendars for March 14th – 21st, when we set out to broaden our worldview and challenge our understanding of our responsibilities as Christians in the world. And remember, transportation to and from the airport in Dallas, Texas, is neither included in nor provided by I.A.S. Start making those travel plans now.

In the meantime, watch your e-mail, as this will serve as our primary form of communication for I.A.S. And, if you have any questions, please do not hesitate to connect with I.A.S. Director Jeremy Poynter at j.poynter@tcu.edu or Gary Mitchell at gmitchell@okdisciples.org.
